WASHINGTON CITY.

Gen. Custer's Forebodings.

CHICAGO, July 17.—The Tribune's Washington special states that an intimate friend of Gen. Custer here says that a short time previous to his departure for Montana he in conversation expressed his fears of such a calamity as has recently happened. He said the government could not be persuaded into an appreciation of the formidable character and number of the savages, armed as they were with the best and latest improved rifles. He said unless a much larger force than can be brought into the field at this point now were sent into this country, there would result a long and costly Indian war.

Long Debate Expected on the Texas Border Bill.

The same dispatch says that a prolonged debate is expected on both sides over the Senate amendments to the Texas border bill by which the Hamburg massacre was before the House. Lamar and several of the most prominent southern men have entered their names for recognition, and the expectation is that about a dozen or fifteen will speak on it.

Bristow not to be Pressed to Tell.

The Inter Ocean's Washington special says that Proctor Knott has announced he does not intend to press any further the questions in relation to Cabinet matters which Bristow refused to answer last week. It is whispered that Bristow has written to Knott that he has nothing to tell.

River and Harbor Bill Likely to be Opposed in the Cabinet.

A member of the Cabinet to-day says that if the river and harbor bill passed both houses without being materially modified he would recommend the President to veto it, on the ground that a very large amount of the money appropriated was for local and not national improvement. He believed a majority of the Cabinet would sustain the President in such veto.

Conference Army Bill Agreed Upon.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The committee of conference on the army appropriation bill have reconciled all their differences.

The committee on the legislative bill spent the entire day at their meeting to-day in discussing different propositions for agreement, but in reality made no visible progress on the bill. Propositions were submitted looking to an entire adjustment of some portions of the bill which, if agreed to, will require a week or ten days to prepare the bill for action. Altogether the outlook is not as favorable for a satisfactory termination of the differences between the two Houses as when the adjournment took place Saturday.

Rivalry for the First Chance to Impeach Robeson.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The Times' Washington special says: There is great anxiety on the part of Glover, chairman of the committee on real estate pool, and Whitthorne, chairman of the committee on naval affairs, about resolutions of impeachment against Robeson, each of them being desirous of getting ahead of the other, and each is afraid to bring in a resolution. The point with each is the same, the transfer of government money to Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co. at the time of the panic three years ago. This they regard as impeachable though the proof shows every dollar was amply secured to the government. Glover and Whitthorne each will have difficulty in persuading the majority of their committees that the impeachment scheme is practicable. If the resolutions could pass and the political point be made, they would follow the wishes of the chairmen, but the Democrats admit that the case is so weak as to promise nothing more than a bungling and useless sensation. It looks as though Clymer would stand to the end as the original and only discoverer of impeachable offense.

Tammany's Chief Visits the President.

The Tribune's Washington special says: During John Kelly's recent visit to Washington he paid his respects to most of the prominent Senators and government officers and also spent a day at Mount Vernon. Just before leaving for home Smith Ely asked Kelly if he would not like to call on the President at the White House. Kelly never had seen Grant and said he would be very glad to call on him. Next morning the two gentlemen were in the President's ante room, but they had not long to wait, as Ely is a frequent and welcome visitor to the executive mansion. Presenting Kelly to the President, Ely remarked that Kelly had long been anxious to pay his compliments, to which President Grant replied he was very glad to see Mr. Kelly—"you and I, Mr. Kelly," said the President, "were of the same opinion before the St. Louis nominations." "How is that?" said Kelly. "We were both of opinion that Tilden was unfit to be President," said Grant. "That is so," said Kelly. "But you have changed your mind," said the President, "while I have seen nothing to change my previous opinion." All laughed heartily and Mr. Kelly subsequently remarked that Grant was not the dull fellow he is taken for.

Democratic Southern Members anxious for a Long Session.

The Democratic Southern members are anxious for an all summer session to prevent any measures for the protection of the Southern voters and to avoid any final decision in the appropriation bills. This is really why there is no better progress in the appropriation bills.

Appropriation for the Chinese Inquiry Commission.

Randall gave notice to-day that he will shortly ask the House to appropriate $4,000 for the expenses of the Chinese inquiry bill put through the House to-day.

An amendment to the appropriation bill by Lane appropriates $7,000 for the payment of the Modoc war claims of the State of Oregon and $1,400 for similar claims of California citizens. The bill has yet to pass the Senate.

Bill for the Repeal of the Specie Resumption Act.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Vance's resolution providing that the bill for the repeal of specie resumption may be brought before the House for action out of the regular order, goes over to next Monday, and there is no probability that the necessary vote can be obtained.

The Indians allowed to Join Crook.

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs to-day directed F. F. Danforth, Indian agent at White river agency, to allow all Ute Indians who wished to join Crook to leave the reservation for that purpose.

Office Declined.

Ex Gov. T. W. Bennett, recently nominated by the President for governor of Idaho Territory, declines the office.

Committee Appointed.

Gen. Sherman, President of the society of the Army of the Tennessee, has appointed A. Hickenlooper, Gen. Wm. McKee Dunn, Col. A. Mark ... Capt. S. F. Phelps and Col. John M. ... a committee to make arrangements for the annual meeting to take place in this city on the 18th and 19th of October next, at which time the statue of Gen. McPherson will be unveiled.

The Appropriation Bills Still Unsettled.

The appropriation bills are still in an unsettled condition with the prospect of favorable adjustment farther away than on Saturday. The sundry civil bill was fixed up on Friday last in conference and was supposed to be ready for report to the House. To-day however it was taken up and a new proposition entertained which will require at least one more day for adjustment if it does not delay the bill a much longer time. The same thing has occurred to the army bill. It was agreed upon Saturday ... written up to-day. When it was ready for the signatures of the conferees it was ascertained that some of them had new amendments to submit, and the bill was laid over.

Secretary Bristow's Reply to President Grant.

NEW YORK, July ... [illegible] I have the honor this moment to receive your letter of yesterday, in which, referring with approval to my refusal to testify before the committee of the House of Representatives as to what occurred between the President and myself while I held the office of Secretary of the Treasury, you are pleased to add that you wish to relieve me from all obligations of secrecy and to express the desire that all members of your cabinet may be called upon to testify fully. When I appeared before the committee last week in obedience to their summons I refused to answer any and all questions on official matters that were confidential and private, and that that privilege existed not so much for the protection of the parties immediately concerned as for the interest of the public service. It was right which required me to state any conversation between you and myself touching official matters, whether such confidential talk took place at meetings of the cabinet or at any time, saying, however, to the committee that no inference adverse to any one should be drawn from my refusal to answer their questions. I took the position distinctly that I considered all conversations between the President and the heads of departments. In this view of the matter it now seems to follow that the privilege cannot be waived by either or both of the parties. Indeed, I said to the committee that I would not feel at liberty to answer their questions with your consent. Although I have had no opportunity to examine authorities on this subject, I am still of opinion that it is a public duty to preserve such conversations as confidential and the privilege is not removed, or modified by your consent that I should make full answer to the questions. If the privilege were merely personal it might be waived, but I place it on higher grounds. I respectfully suggest that the appearance of the several heads of departments before the committee of Congress to testify to conversations between the President and themselves running through a period of many months would almost inevitably lead to the disclosure of differences of recollection, and present to the country an unseemly conflict to which I could not willingly be a party. Besides, it seems to me that such an inquiry by a committee of Congress tends to the absorption if not the complete destruction of executive power and to the establishment of a purely legislative government. In any view I am able to take, it seems to me that duty requires me to adhere to my announced purpose not to answer the questions propounded to me by the committee. I beg to remind you that my opinion on this subject was repeatedly stated to you and the members of the cabinet, and as I understand met your and their approval. My withdrawal from the Cabinet does not alter or modify my duty in this respect, nor have my own views undergone any change. I hope I will not be recalled by the committee, but should they see proper to call me again I cannot consent, as at present advised, to testify.

Kelley's Silver Bill.

The bill introduced by Kelley of Pennsylvania to-day in relation to the coinage of standard silver dollars provides that whereas by the omission of the name legal tender silver dollars in the enumeration of silver coin of the United States in the act of Feb. 12, 1873, the authority to coin said dollars was withheld, therefore there shall be from time to time struck and coined at the several mints of the United States silver dollars of the weight of 412½ grains as provided for in the act of January 18, 1837, upon which shall be the devices and legends provided by said act and that said dollar shall be a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The impeachment trial was resumed, but owing to the absence of Evarts the Senate sitting as a court of impeachment adjourned until Wednesday.

The Senate then considered the river and harbor bill.

The pending question being on the motion of Thurman to recommit to committee on appropriations with instructions to report a bill reducing the amount of appropriations contained in this bill to a sum not to exceed $1,000,000. Kernan spoke in favor of the motion and went into a lengthy discussion on the subject of retrenchment. He favored a reduction especially in this bill on the ground that many items in the bill were useless, not promoting in any manner the commercial interests of the government.

Edmunds opposed the motion, but favored a reduction of the aggregate amount in the bill.

Morton opposed the motion. In the course of his speech he made a general attack on the policy of retrenchment pursued by the House, characterizing it as demagoguery of the first magnitude. When the appropriations were to affect members directly they were not willing to carry out the principle of retrenchment, but when it was to be set apart for carrying on the government then they raised a cry of economy and voted to cut down appropriations simply for political capital.

Conkling referred to the care bestowed upon the bill by the committee on commerce and committee on appropriations of the Senate and said some of the amendments put in by the Senate were inevitably vicious.

Thurman referred to the remarks of Morton and said he desired to say to his Democratic friends that if this bill should pass they would hear much more of the same sort between this time and November next.

Morton said the bill as it now stands was as much the work of Democrats as of any others, hence was an end of talk of retrenchment.

Thurman said it was true the bill had broken down all party lines. It broke through everything. He did not think the government could afford to appropriate more than $1,000,000 this year for rivers and harbors and it was a great fallacy to talk of extravagance on the ground that the resources of this country were boundless.

Morton said the debates here had been to the effect that the country was on the verge of bankruptcy. Tilden, who was nominated by the Democratic party for President, in a recent speech when he was serenaded, said poverty was at the door of every house in the country. He (Morton) thought it was that kind of talk which was so largely to enter into this campaign and which was so largely false. There was some distress in the country, but it was nothing like what it had been said to be; that the country was on the verge of bankruptcy was false and put out for political effect. If the appropriations should be made according to the House bills there would be a large surplus to apply to the payment of the national debt, but the people would have as much taxes to pay as ever.

Kernan argued that the people would be relieved by having a surplus revenue. There should be such a surplus and taxation could be reduced. Congress must cease to make such large appropriations if it ever intends to reduce taxation. The people should be relieved from every dollar of taxation that was possible. There were people all over the country out of work, and if Tilden was wrong in his assertions and the Senator from Indiana (Morton) was right, the whole country would know it. He hoped persons would not be moved by the argument of the Senator that the state of the country and the national treasury was such that large appropriations might be made.

Pending the discussion the Senate went into executive session and soon adjourned.

House.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Boutwell made a personal explanation that the Democratic platform adopted at St. Louis charged that the late Secretary of the treasury ... to himself had been forced to balance the public accounts. He denied that such was the case, and read from the report of the finance committee recently made to the Senate stating they were satisfied that not the slightest change had been made in the books.

Davis said the books in the treasury department had not been changed—official statements to Congress had. He proposed to review the report of the finance committee ... in a few days and would then show that discrepancies existed.

Boutwell said the Senator from West Virginia [illegible] figures. He did not understand the [illegible] figures.

House.

A bill was introduced providing for the election of governor, secretary, treasurer, auditor and superintendent of schools in the several Territories. It provides that these officers shall be elected by the people of the Territories, and that such election shall be held the ... day after the first Monday of December, and provides that the President may at any time for cause remove the governor or secretary of any Territory, but the cause thereof must be communicated to the Senate. He is also authorized to appoint a successor to such office for the unexpired term.

Kelley introduced a bill for the coinage of standard dollars, weight 412½ grains, as provided for in act of 18th January, 1837, and to make it a legal tender for all debts public and private. Referred.

The Senate having concurred in a resolution making a special committee of the two Houses on the [illegible] question, a joint committee was concurred in.

The House then went into committee of the whole on the bill to protect the Texas frontier.

The pending question was the amendment last Saturday by Smalls of South Carolina in connection with the Hamburg troubles, that no troops shall be withdrawn from South Carolina. Smalls advocated amendment and replied to Cox, who said amendments had been offered for bad political purposes.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

East Indian Finances in a Bad Way.

LONDON, July 17.—The Times' special from Calcutta says the exchange question occupies public attention to almost the entire exclusion of other topics, whether the lowest point has been reached. Whether the depression will be permanent or temporary and whether any, and if so, what remedy is possible are the main subjects of conversation among all classes. The rate now is a fraction above 1s 6d per rupee, so that remitting small sums costs about 25 per cent. Large sums cost slightly less. The government loss will nearly equal the gain from the opium revenue. Except the mutiny this is the worst crisis in Anglo-Indian history, and there are few instances anywhere of a calamity so crushing and so general. If the depression continues it will probably paralyze the import trade. The problem before the Indian government calls for the most anxious consideration, and if the depression is to be permanent it will resolve itself into a question of how to stave off national bankruptcy.

Members of Parliament Coming to Philadelphia.

The Echo says it understands that the following members of Parliament will proceed to Philadelphia after the adjournment of the present session: Joseph Gillis Biggar, Jacob Bright, Thomas Burt, Frank Edward Blackett Beaumont, George Anderson, Chas. Cameron, Joseph Cowen, Sir Charles Dilke, baronet, Joseph Dodds, Chas. Joseph Fay, Edward Tempest Gourley, Sir Henry Marshman Havelock, baronet, C. B., James Fortescue Harrison, Isaac Fletcher, ... John Walter James Lawson, George Leeman, Alex. McDonald, Wm. Holmes, Anthony John Mundella, John O'Connor Power, Joseph Whitwell Pease, Mr. Rylands, Thos. Eustace Smith, Patrick James Smythe, Jas. Cochrane Stevenson, Jno. Whitwell and Benj. Whitworth. The Right Hon. John Bright declines to go on account of ill health.

England Sticks to the Treaty of Paris.

In the House of Lords the Earl of Derby, in reply to a question by Earl Dunraven, Conservative, said he cannot advise Parliament to abrogate the declaration of the treaty of Paris that a neutral flag protects an enemy's goods except contraband of war. This declaration has been in force for twenty years. England has pressed it upon other governments, and if she now withdraws it there would raise a suspicion that she was preparing for war.

England's Policy on the Eastern Question.

NEW YORK, July 18.—A special dispatch says the British ambassador at Vienna states that British co-operation with the allied powers depends upon the Porte being confidentially kept acquainted with every step taken by the powers during and after the war. It also depends upon the vassalship of the insurgent States remaining unimpaired, unless the Porte relieves them of his own accord.

Turkish War News.

VIENNA, July 18.—The Presse says during the engagement with the insurgents on the 13th inst., the Turkish man of war fired upon the insurgents notwithstanding the protest of the commander of the Austrian man of war. The Presse says this a flagrant violation of Austria's rights.

BELGRADE, July 18.—A Servian detachment has invaded the whole valley of T[illegible] between Nobi Bass and Notchitz. The Bulgars have risen and furnished volunteers for the Servian army. A statement published here denying the various reports unfavorable to Servia says Gen. Tchernayeff has neither been surrounded nor beaten. No important battle is expected for a fortnight. Gen. Zach reports that the Turks are committing fearful atrocities, burning Servian and Bosnian villages and massacring inhabitants. The Servians are still before Novi Bazar, despite the Turkish assertions to the contrary. The Servians have not yet lost a single cannon.

The Montenegrins have uninterrupted communication between Trebinje and Ragusa.

The London Standard's Constantinople correspondent telegraphs that the health of the Sultan causes great anxiety. He has never recovered from the shock caused by the suicide of Sultan Abdul Aziz and the murder of Hussein Avni Pasha, minister of war. He is a mere wreck and utterly unfit for business. Some have positively declared that symptoms of softening of the brain have appeared. He is in imminent danger. Personally I believe his abdication near at hand and unavoidable. You may expect to hear at any moment that his brother Abdul Hamid reigns.

Mukhtar Pasha is fortifying the hills south of Mostar and concentrating troops from the Bosnian and Servian frontiers. The slowness of the Montenegrin army will probably permit the completion of the defense.

On the 14th instant a company of Turkish troops from Klek fell into an ambuscade of insurgents under Gen. Paulovich. They suffered great loss while sustaining the attack of superior forces until the arrival of reinforcements when the insurgents retreated.

Turkish Atrocities.

LONDON, July 18.—The Times' special from Paris ... states that the report of Gen. Olympios concerning the Turkish cruelties says the Turks have killed several hundred women and children in B[illegible]. They are cutting women and children to pieces, throwing them in the air and catching them upon bayonets. They cut off the heads and noses of the dead and wounded, while Turkish prisoners are treated like Servians.

Disraeli stated that the dispatch from Elliott, Turkish Minister at Constantinople, says the excesses in Bulgaria are deplorable, but the published reports are grossly exaggerated. There has been no wholesale slaughter. The Christian inhabitants are volunteering against the Servians. The loyalty of Christians and Mohammedans against Servia is extraordinary.

The Times' Berlin dispatch says Greece has bought 11,000 rifles from Germany.

The Sultan Greatly Depressed.

A Vienna dispatch says trustworthy intelligence from Constantinople says the Sultan is greatly depressed mentally and secludes himself from his ministers. The last time he received them his manner was strange. He displayed alternately deep depression and violent fits of laughter. The investiture ceremony was delayed because of the Sultan's condition.

Unsatisfactory Condition of Trade in England.

LONDON, July 18.—In consequence of the very unsatisfactory accounts received, and the prospect of ... important failures, a large amount of bank notes have been transmitted by home banks in the iron districts. Great depression in Cleveland iron trade appears likely to culminate in disastrous financial complications. Rumors are circulated that bills of a well known firm have been sent back from the bank. The firm besides being one of the largest in the iron industry is also a gigantic mine and coal concern and on its safety depends the existence of a number of others. A private meeting of the principal iron masters of the district was held yesterday and it is intended if practicable to convert the firm into a stock company and by this means meet the exigencies of the case.

Our market has been unaffected by the war in Turkey [illegible] were appearing probable. The trade has been much depressed owing to large supplies arriving. The number of cargoes of wheat is 58. But few sales have transpired and the position of the market is somewhat indefinite. Buyers are holding off and holders are not [illegible] to the low prices. A decline of full 2s per quarter on unforeseen cargoes has taken place during the week. Maize [illegible] quotations unaltered. Barley has been steady.

Fatal Issue of a Stabbing Affray.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—On Saturday Thos. Taaffe, one of the two men stabbed in the affray with the hoodlums on the previous Monday evening, died in the county hospital. The affray took place on the corner of Union and Dupont streets, and is said to have been unprovoked on the part of the wounded man. Wm. McCall, Jas. Tighe and Edward Copessa have been arrested on suspicion of having committed the assault. To-day coroner Swain held an inquest in the case of Taaffe, and the jury found a verdict that the deceased died from the effects of wounds received on the above occasion, but were unable to fix the guilt of either of the prisoners. A charge of murder was entered against them in the police court to-day, and the case was continued until Wednesday.

Smallpox.

Only one case of smallpox was reported at the health office yesterday. To-day, up to noon, the number reported was five. The health office is now daily thronged with people waiting to be vaccinated. The board of health had a special meeting this afternoon to consider what is necessary to be done in view of the spread of the disease. A good deal of discussion was had as to the means of getting rid of the Chinese hospitals in the center of the city where smallpox patients are harbored. The health officer was directed to notify the Six Companies to remove these patients.

The Chronicle's War on the Bonanza.

The Chronicle continues its bold movement on bonanzas this morning, and quotes utterances of C. W. Bonynge, vice president of the old board, and M. J. McDonald, in support of its assertions that Consolidated Virginia and California are petering out, and that Flood & O'Brien have been heavy sellers for months past. The Alta, on the other hand, has an article this morning crediting the recent decline entirely to the manipulations of the bear combination, assisted by the recent diminution of the production of the bonanza mines, attributed to lack of hoisting and crushing facilities. It claims, on the statement of one of the members of the firm of Flood & O'Brien, that they have disposed of none of their stock, but, on the contrary, have been heavy purchasers at different times. They have firm faith in the value of these properties and say that the shares will again realize as great if not greater figures than they have in the past.

The Call goes for the Chronicle editorially, saying that paper supported the bull movement eighteen months ago, when certain operators wanted to sell, but has now been enlisted by bears and admits that its previous reports were false, and makes the very hard intimation that on both occasions the columns of the Chronicle were bought for the purpose.

Effort to Prevent the Importation of Chinese Lewd Women.

Ah Foo, indicted for holding a Chinese girl for immoral purposes, and an old hag who imported her, were allowed this evening until to-morrow to plead. Their bail was fixed at $500 each. The girl was held as a witness in bonds of $5,000. The parties interested in the case furnished sureties, who qualified in the amounts necessary to procure her release, with the probable intention of either spiriting her away, or intimidating her into giving evidence. In order to keep her in custody Mr. Coglan had her arrested as a party to the contract under which she was brought here.

VIRGINIA, July 18.—Colonel Fair denies the stories published in San Francisco this morning concerning the bonanza mines. He says no work has been done for five months on the 1,500 foot level of California and that the 1,700 foot level of Ophir has been flooded since the October fire. The winzes from the 1,600 foot levels of California and Con. Virginia, he states, are in rich ore. He attributes the efforts of the bears to disparage the mines to their fear of being stuck in stocks.

DECISION IN U. S. DISTRICT COURT BY JUDGE DEADY.

The Wallamet R. T. Co. v. the Oregon S. N. Co.—No. 417. In admiralty.

SATURDAY, JULY 1, 1876.

The damages caused by a collision when both boats are in fault must be divided between them.

A boat should be run in a fog at moderate speed and with caution.

A boat which has missed its landing in a fog and is turning around to return to it in the fair way of other boats navigating the river ought to blow three whistles as provided in rule 10 of pilot rules.

What is a fog signal?

A pardon does not restore the credit of a person convicted of an infamous crime and therefore such a person is not a witness entitled to full credit.

DEADY, J.

During the autumn of 1874 the libellant and the respondent were engaged in running competitive lines of steamboats on the waters of the Wallamet and Columbia rivers between Portland and Astoria. On the morning of October 29, 1874, the Isaac McNear, belonging to the respondent, and the Wallamet Chief, belonging to the libellant, started from Portland for Astoria. The Chief is a light built, stern wheel boat, about 150 feet in length, while the McNear is a heavy, disconnected, double engine, side wheel boat, about 100 feet in length, with a solid bow and very strongly built. The usual time of starting from Portland was 6 A. M., but on this occasion the McNear started about ten minutes and the Chief about 35 minutes behind time. The latter was delayed on account of not reaching her wharf the night before, on her trip from Astoria, until 12 o'clock. The cause of the delay of the McNear was trifling and immaterial. The wharfs from which the boats started were some distance apart—that of the Chief being farthest up the river. In going to Astoria she would pass immediately in front of the McNear's wharf.

The morning was foggy, so that at times it was necessary to run with a compass, but most of the time the banks of the river could be sufficiently distinguished to make the use of the compass unnecessary. As a rule the fog was thicker immediately upon the surface of the water than above it until the time of the collision, when it began to rise. Both vessels were in the habit of calling at St. John, a place on the right bank of the Wallamet about five or six miles below Portland. On this occasion the McNear had a passenger for St. John, and reached the place a few minutes after 7 o'clock, but passed the wharf without being aware of it. The sight of the barrel factory above the wharf apprised the master of his mistake, when he stopped his engines and let his boat run out her way and then blew a blast upon his whistle to signify his intention to land, and turned upstream, backing upon one wheel and going ahead upon the other. As the McNear headed up stream she was about 100 feet from the St. John shore and about 200 yards below the St. John wharf.

The Chief followed the McNear down the river without seeing or hearing her until about a mile above St. John, when her master heard the landing whistle of the latter, and very naturally supposed that the McNear was about to land at Springville, a place on the left bank of the river, and about ¼ of a mile below St. John. The Chief had neither freight nor passengers to discharge at St. John, but as usual bore in for the wharf as she passed, so that she might land readily and take on whatever might be there for her, if anything. On this morning she came to the wharf at a speed of 6 or 7 miles an hour, and about 150 feet out in the stream. There was nothing on the wharf for her, and she did not attempt to land. Just here, the master of the Chief "sighted" the McNear about 200 yards ahead, but made the mistake of supposing that she was going from him. With that, he gave one blast of his whistle to signify his intention to pass to the right, and started ahead under full steam—about 12 or 14 miles an hour. When within about 200 feet of the McNear the master of the Chief discovered his mistake, and discovered that the former was meeting him instead of going from him. He immediately gave the signal to reverse the engine and commenced backing.

The master of the McNear heard the whistle of the Chief to pass to the right, but made no reply to it and testifies that he took it for a fog whistle. After turning up stream, the McNear continued in motion and headed for the wharf. In this position, assuming that she was going down stream, as the master of the Chief supposed, she would appear to be going away from the bank and widening the space between herself and the east shore, over which the Chief intended to pass. When the boats were within about 50 feet of one another the McNear blew two whistles to signify her intention to pass to the right, to which the Chief made no response. At the same time she commenced backing. But it was then too late to prevent the collision, and the only thing to be done by either party was to lessen the force of it by backing the engines. Both boats were still moving forward when they came in contact. The bow of the McNear struck the port bow of the Chief about 6 feet back of the stem and cut her down to the water line for a distance of about 20 feet. At the time both boats were pointing towards the east shore—the McNear more so than the Chief. The force of the blow turned the bow of the McNear down stream so that she was almost at right angles with the bank. She immediately backed off into the stream and then proceeded to the wharf, where it was found she was not materially injured. The Chief's bow was also turned towards the shore by the blow. She was immediately run on to the bank, but her master thinking that her bulkheads would keep her afloat started back for Portland. But a short distance above St. John it was found she was sinking, and she was beached. Afterwards she was raised, taken to Portland and repaired.

Upon this state of facts I think both vessels are to blame, and the result of the collision must be borne between them. The remote cause of the trouble doubtless lay in the fact that the boats belonged to rival lines and were then running in opposition to one another.

When the master of the Chief "sighted" the McNear there was considerable fog on the river, so much so that he mistook her stern for her bow at a distance of 200 yards—not a very great mistake probably—but enough to show that there was a necessity for careful and slow running on account of the fog. The master of the Chief was entitled to pass on the right, whether the McNear was going up or down stream, and therefore he gave the proper signal—one blast of his whistle. (Sec. § 4,233 R. S., Rule 18 and Rule 1 and 11 of Pilot Rules of Jan. 1, 1872.) But I do not think he was justified under the circumstances in attempting to pass her at the rate of speed he did. He was in a fog and should have proceeded at a moderate rate of speed, as provided by Rule 21 of § 4,233 supra—at least until he was near enough the McNear to be certain of her movements and direction. It seems to me that he was also lacking in diligence and attention when he ran 400 feet after he started to pass the McNear and to within 200 feet of her before he discovered his mistake in supposing that she was going away from him when the fact was she was approaching him with her bow inclined to the shore and across the line of his direction.

It is probable that he was so elated with the idea of overtaking and passing a rival who had left him behind that morning under the impression that by reason of the Astoria accident he would be unable to make this trip, that he forgot or disregarded the fact that he was running in a fog in the proximity of another boat and that his first duty was to navigate the Chief safely and avoid the chances of a collision with the McNear. If the McNear had been going down stream and moving out from the bank as he supposed the Chief might have passed her with safety. But in this supposition, however plausible, the master of the Chief was in error. Had there been no fog and had he kept a diligent lookout he could not have made the mistake of supposing that the McNear was going from him when she was approaching him, with no object between them until she came within 200 feet of him. But because the utmost diligence will not prevent mistakes as to the character, distance and motion of objects in a fog the law very properly requires that a vessel under such circumstances shall be run at a moderate rate of speed and with caution. When the master of the Chief having "sighted" the McNear 200 yards below him on the right side of the river, crowded on all steam and undertook to pass her without having a reply to his signal and did not observe until he came within 200 feet of her that the McNear, instead of going away from him was meeting him, "head and head," he was guilty of misconduct and negligence that directly contributed to this collision.

The conduct of the master of the McNear was also seriously at fault. He was aware of the delay of the Chief in reaching her wharf night before, and he had every reason to know that if she was on the route that morning at all she was somewhere behind him. In his testimony he undertakes to give the impression he had upon the subject in the following contradictory statement. Speaking of the single whistle of the Chief which she gave when her master "sighted" the McNear, he says: "It was the first intimation I had that the Chief was coming our way behind me. I knew that she was disabled the night before. That is, I knew she got up late, and had paid but little attention to her, supposing she was ahead of me, as we were a little late."

He also knew that there was no boat belonging to any regular line on that river, that would be expected to be found ascending it at that place anywhere near that time of day, and that therefore his landing whistle as was descending the river below St. John would naturally give the impression to boats behind him that he was descending the river and about to land at Springville. Having missed his landing at St. John, as he might under the circumstances without serious fault, and gone some distance below and whistled to land, when he commenced turning up stream, in the fair way of descending steamers there being at the time a fog on the river, which he testifies prevented him from seeing the Chief at a greater distance than 250 feet, he should have signified his condition by three distinct blasts of his whistle, as provided in Rule 10 of the pilot rules aforesaid. But, at all events, when he heard the single whistle of the Chief to pass to the right, he should have answered it, and put his wheel to port, and then the boats might have passed without collision.

But the respondent maintains that the master of the McNear did answer the Chief's signal to pass to the right, and such is his testimony. He also swears that at the same time he stopped both engines and gave the signal to pass to the left—two whistles—and that the Chief answered with two whistles. The master of the Chief swears that the McNear did not answer his signal to pass to the right, and that he did not answer hers to pass to the left, as the collision was then unavoidable. Upon this point the decided weight of the evidence in the case is in favor of the statement of the master of the Chief. Besides, if this point rested upon the evidence of the two masters alone, it would have to be decided according to that of the master of the Chief. It being proven that the master of the McNear has been convicted of an infamous crime, he is not a witness entitled to full credit. It is admitted that the fact of his conviction affects his credibility, but it is claimed that his subsequent pardon by the President—February 27, 1869—restores it. No authority has been cited for this novel proposition; and it is wholly contrary to the nature and reason of the matter. If the pardon established his innocence with the same degree of certainty that the conviction did his guilt, then it would follow that his credibility was thereby restored. But nothing short of [illegible] can give it such effect. But as a matter of fact, a pardon by the President is no proof of the innocence of the party receiving it, though it may have been granted upon the belief or impression that the party was not or might not be guilty. It is, or certainly was at the date of this pardon, an ex parte proceeding, taken upon the ex parte statements, representations and solicitations of sympathizing friends and interested and uninformed parties, and cannot be said to prove anything beyond its own existence, and the fact that the [illegible] was entitled to have, or had, the [illegible] requisite to procure the exercise of the executive clemency to him. A pardon does not profess to be a reversal of the judgment of conviction, but only a relief from the punishment imposed by it. In every other respect the judgment stands as if no pardon had been granted. These remarks are made, of course, with reference to pardons in general; but there is nothing upon the face of this one or in the circumstances of the case calculated to take it out of the general rule.

The master of the McNear also swears that he took the signal of the Chief to pass to the right for a "fog whistle," and in support of this conclusion he testifies that a fog signal is "a short blast" of the steam whistle. But this is a manifest error, and betrays a want of knowledge upon the subject which may have materially contributed to this collision. The signal to pass to the right, whether boats are meeting "head to head" or running in the same direction is "a short, distinct blast." (See rules 1 and 11 of the pilot rules aforesaid.) while a fog signal is made by sounding the whistle at intervals of not more than a minute. (See rule 15 of [illegible].) Now, to sound a whistle is something the opposite of and different from "a short, distinct blast" of it, and necessarily in this connection implies duration—a drawing out—like blowing a horn.

Upon the evidence it satisfactorily appears that the master of the McNear was guilty of misconduct in not sounding three whistles when he stopped in the stream below St. John and turned completely around, and in not answering the signal of the Chief to pass to the right, and at once putting his wheel to port, or in misunderstanding [illegible] if he took it for a fog signal and therefore did not answer it, and that he thereby directly contributed to produce this collision.

The damages in this case, except the claim for general depreciation are not seriously contested. The cost of repairs was $925. The net earnings of the boat appear to have been $500 per month, and the pay roll of her crew for the same time $1,000. For demurrage the claim is for one third of a month, for loss of net profits $166, and for wages of crew $333. But I think the testimony warrants the inference that the steward and his help, and the purser were not retained during the detention or were elsewhere employed, and for this item only $200 is allowed, making the aggregate for repairs and demurrage the sum of $1,291. For general depreciation the claim is $6,000. I think there can be no doubt upon the evidence but that some damage ought to be allowed under this head although it is difficult to fix any precise sum. In my judgment it ought not to be less than $3,000, and I allow that sum. See Wallamet R. T. Co. v. Oregon S. N. Co. No. 382. This added to the foregoing sum, makes $4,291, the one-half of which—$2,145, with interest for one year and eight months—$286—the libellant is entitled to recover off the respondent. These estimates being made in coin and the respondent being entitled to satisfy the decree herein with U. S. currency, a decree will be entered for the libellant for the foregoing sum—$2,431—with 10 per centum thereon, making $2,674 in all, without cost.

William H. Effinger and Richard Williams for libellant.

William Strong and Frederick Strong for respondent.

WEDNESDAY MORNING JULY 18, 1876.

TURKEY.

The present ruler of Turkey, from whom so much was expected, seems likely to disappoint the hopes of his friends. Instead of being energetic and able, he appears to be apathetic and weak. It is stated that he rarely ever meets his ministers in council, and that on the rare occasions when he does, he exhibits no interest in what is transpiring. The cause of this strange carelessness is said to be owing to the severe nervous shock given him by the news of the sudden death of his predecessor, for whose death, or murder, he feared the world would hold him responsible, and also, by the more recent assassination of his late Ministers by a devoted adherent of the late Sultan. From all that can be learned the Turks have not been fortunate in their selection of a new ruler. Either the present Sultan is physically or mentally, perhaps both, unfit for the position he holds. In the present situation of affairs in that unhappy country the soundest wisdom and most adroit statesmanship would hardly find a safe course by which to steer the ship of state and preserve it from disastrous wreck. The difficulties in the way of bringing the affairs of Turkey to a happy settlement are stupendous, and are no doubt secretly aggravated by the strong desire of Russia for the dismemberment of the country. It is true that the Czar does not openly support the insurgents, but it is beyond doubt that they are encouraged by the sympathy of a large portion of the Russian people and strengthened by contributions of war material conveyed to them from Russia. The longer the war lasts, the harder will be the task of reconstruction. The resentments excited by maladministration of law and oppression before the war, will be intensified by the atrocities practiced during its continuance. The reports which reach us may not be literally true, but they are measurably so and will [illegible] widen the breach between the Christian and the Moslem subjects of the Porte.

It is hard to say which side at present has the advantage. The reports vary accordingly as they come from Sclavonic or Turkish sources. But whether Turkey is beating, or being beaten, she has equal need of a strong, wise and prudent ruler or councillor, and for him we look in vain. The monarch is an imbecile, and there is no Omar Pasha to manage the affairs of his realm. The Turks feel the need of a stronger hand to hold the helm. A successor to the present Sultan is longed for, and anxious eyes are turning to Abdul Hamid in hope that he may be elevated to the throne and prove the saviour of the fortunes of the country. Whether he, if made Sultan, will prove equal to the expectations of the Turks is more than doubtful—but let us hope so.

A HOUSE DIVIDED AGAINST ITSELF.

When Mr. Tilden and Mr. Hendricks met at Saratoga there was evidently a serious difference of opinion between them. It is difficult to see how it could have been otherwise. Mr. Tilden is a strong hard money man and Mr. Hendricks an equally strong soft money man. Each, we may assume, believed the opinions on the financial question of the other to be fatally injurious to the interests of the [illegible]. Before they could come to any agreement one or the other would have to recant and declare his former views unsound, or, in other words, write himself down an ass. This is by no means a pleasant thing for any one to do, specially for men of the prominence of Gov. Hendricks and Gov. Tilden. But it would never do to speak their respective views out plainly, particularly as the policy of plain speaking had not been followed in the platform, which is all things to all men; and yet how not to speak plainly and yet appear to do so, was a difficult task. In the words of Mr. Tilden's whilom friend, "what were they going to do about it?" That still remains to be seen. Gov. Tilden hurried off to Albany to his solitary mansion and left Gov. Hendricks and the question as he found them. Shortly after his departure it leaked out, say the dispatches, that the difference between him and Gov. Hendricks was irreconcilable and may cause Hendricks either to repudiate Tilden's theories or withdraw from the ticket. We hardly think either of these will be done. A middle way will probably be hit upon by the party managers—possibly to adopt Tilden's views during the campaign and those of Hendricks afterwards, in case the Democracy should be successful.

SMUGGLER.

Smuggler is not a disreputable defrauder of the public revenue but a distinguished descendant of the equine Adam. In fact he is at the present writing the most valuable representative of his species in the world. He belongs to Col. Russell, of Boston, and has just achieved greatness by trotting a mile in a shorter space of time than any other horse in the world. The wonderful old mare, Goldsmith Maid, formerly stood at the head of trotting horses with her record of 2:14, but on Saturday last, if the dispatches are correct, Smuggler surpassed her best efforts and won for himself great credit and renown. Unfortunately we failed to receive any account of the race, and are consequently unable to say how much the record has been lowered. That we shall know in time. In the meantime it will be interesting to know that Smuggler is a mahogany bay, 15 hands 3 inches high, and strongly made. He was bred by Mr. J. M. Morgan, near Columbus, Ohio, and was sired by Blanco, son of Iron's Cadmus, out of a blood pacing mare, said to have been a daughter of Tuckahoe. Cadmus was descended from American Eclipse, who was of Messenger blood. The sire of Smuggler was by the sire of Pocahontas, the fast pacing mare. From this it will be seen that Smuggler was of right royal blood.

Smuggler at first showed a disposition to pace; but, this being corrected, he soon exhibited his extraordinary power as a trotter. In 1873 he trotted a mile in 2:19½, and shortly afterwards his then owner, Mr. Morgan, sold him to Col. Russell for the alleged price of $10,000. Col. Russell entered him for the $10,000 purse at Buffalo, in August, 1874, in which he was beaten and distanced in the fourth heat, but not until after he had trotted the fastest second heat ever made by a stallion. He was again beaten, one week after, at Utica. At Springfield, Aug. 18th, he won the $1000 purse in 2:25. At the same meeting he was distanced on the second heat by Kansas Chief in the slow time of 2:29. At Mystic Park, Sept 2d, he was beaten by Lucille Golddust in 2:24¼, 2:22¼, 2:22, 2:23, winning the third heat. On the 14th of the same month, however, he won the $10,000 stallion purse for the championship of America, beating Phil Sheridan, H. W. Genet, Mambrino Gift and Vermont Abdallah in 2:23, 2:23, 2:20, the last heat equalling the time made by Mambrino Gift at Rochester, the month previous, which was the fastest on record for a third heat by stallions. On last Saturday, as we have stated, Smuggler eclipsed all his former efforts by beating 2:14, the time of Goldsmith Maid and the best on record. Since then, Col. Russell has been offered and refused $100,000 for this great horse.

TILDEN'S CANAL REFORM WORK.

This is what the New York Times says of Tilden's canal reform work:

For convenience of reference, it may be well to furnish here a brief recapitulation of the visible work of canal reform, so that when "these suits," the "canal suits," the prosecution of fraudulent contractors," and "stoppage of fraudulent contracts," are talked, it may be remembered exactly what it all amounts to. If the statement be questioned, one has only to go the Attorney General's office. The records are free to any one who chooses to examine them.

RECORD OF GOV. TILDEN'S CANAL REFORM SUITS, &C., FROM THE PUBLICATION OF THE CANAL MESSAGE, MARCH, 1875, TO DATE.

Number of suits brought	*3
Number brought to trial	2
Number of convictions obtained	1
Number of suits dismissed by court	1
Number of suits now pending	1
Amount of money recovered	None
Expenses of commission and counsel to assist Attorney General, about	$100,000
Payment of two certificates stopped by commission	$8,000
Number of existing fraudulent contracts stopped	None.

*It cannot be said that these suits were commenced, as one of these three was the old suit commenced by Attorney General Barlow and finally abandoned by him as hopeless. This is the one which the court dismissed.

THE REALLY WELL-DRESSED LADY.—Her first study seems to be the becoming, her second, the good; her third, the fashionable, which, if it be both good and becoming, it always may be. You see this lady turning a cold eye to the assurances of shopmen and the recommendations of milliners. She cares not how new or original a pattern may be, if it be ugly; or how recent a shape, if it be awkward. Not that her costume is always new: on the contrary, she wears many a cheap dress, but it is always pretty, and many an old one, but it is always good. She deals in no gaudy confusion of colors, nor does she affect a studied primness or sobriety; but she either refreshes you with a spirited contrast, or composes you with a judicious harmony. After all there is no great art either in her fashions or her materials. The secret simply consists in her knowing the three grand unities—her own station, her own age, and her own points! And no woman can dress well who does not. After this, we need not say that whoever is attracted by the costume will not be disappointed in the wearer. She may not be handsome nor accomplished, but we will answer for her being even-tempered, well informed, thoroughly sensible, and a complete lady.

Dr. Robert Lawson, in the Lancet, gives the brain-weights of some lunatics who have died in the West Riding Asylum. Six range from 58 to 61 ounces, four of them 58, which was the weight of Daniel Webster's brain, so often spoken of. The lunatic of 61-ounce avoirdupois was 71 years of age, and his brain must have weighed 64 when he was 45 years old, and this was the weight of the biggest head on record—the great Cuvier. This, the Popular Science monthly thinks, proves that brain-weight is not an index of mental power. It would be, if it was certain that these asylum patients did not get there from the very fact of an overdose of brains. A powerful nervous organism often wears out the body, and the reaction is mental death. If it hadn't been for his stomach, how easy it would have been to have made a lunatic of Daniel Webster! They used to say that it was politically uncertain whether he wasn't one anyway.

[illegible] SPEECHES BY MAYORS HUMPHREY AND CHAPMAN [illegible] CENTENNIAL [illegible] FRATERNITY [illegible]

Monday afternoon the excursionists left the eastside depot having on board about [illegible] passengers bound for Albany. There were six passenger coaches besides the [illegible] excursionists [illegible] the Mayor [illegible] members of the [illegible] several [illegible] of the [illegible] representatives of [illegible] a large number of the most prominent and influential [illegible] excursionists were ladies wives, daughters [illegible] invited guests. The train left [illegible] Aurora was reached [illegible] where the hungry excursionists [illegible] prepared for their [illegible] Twenty minutes were [illegible] During this time the Aurora band discoursed some of their sweetest strains [illegible] but we regret to say that its soothing effect was marred to a great extent by the clatter of knives and forks and the pleasant conversation which was carried on across the tables. At length the bell [illegible] the familiar cry of "All Aboard" was heard and we were again off. After a delightful ride Salem was reached where a large crowd was in waiting at the depot [illegible] The ride from Salem to Albany was [illegible] enjoyed by all [illegible] the delightful [illegible] of the evening. The train [illegible] could be desired, the weather was lovely and the view which met the pleased eye at every turn was grand. Everything was conducted with a thoughtful regard to the comfort and pleasure of those on board and everybody was in excellent spirits. Conductor Bollinger managed the train in his customary efficient manner and no accident occurred or any unpleasant incident which could detract from the enjoyment of the excursion party. It is entirely superfluous to add that that [illegible] gentleman Mr H D Sanborn was master of ceremonies [illegible] He was here, there and everywhere at the same moment [illegible] and managing the affair seemingly unmindful of himself and determined that not one thing should be omitted which could contribute to the pleasure [illegible] of the guests.

Albany was reached at a little past [illegible] The whole population of that beautiful and thriving city turned out [illegible] the visitors [illegible] At least 2,000 persons were assembled at the depot on the arrival of the train [illegible] All [illegible] Albany were out in full [illegible] and the members of the [illegible] the depot the two bands Northwestern [illegible] the same instant [illegible] by the gallant boys of Albany and their friends as a token [illegible] which was returned [illegible] A few minutes delay followed while the crowd poured out from the cars [illegible] Under the direction of Chief Engineer [illegible] Webber assisted by Assistant Engineer [illegible] Simpson [illegible] National flag Northwest [illegible] Band delegations from the [illegible] of the Portland and Salem fire department [illegible] Albany members of the Centennial committee Portland press and citizens of Portland Salem and [illegible] The procession proceeded down [illegible] to Six[illegible] Broadalbin down Broadalbin to Fifth and thence to

Which had been brilliantly illuminated from basement to dome in honor of the event. A large number of ladies and gentlemen had assembled there prior to the arrival of the procession. [illegible] the band the procession [illegible] the large court room [illegible] crowd kept pouring [illegible] The gallery was filled to overflowing and standing room was [illegible] Every possible courtesy was shown the visitors and every lady was [illegible] with a seat [illegible] Mr [illegible] Weller [illegible] mayor of Albany to preside [illegible] Mayor Humphrey [illegible]

[illegible] ready to take their place in line of battle with [illegible] hunger and death at duty's call [illegible] triumphs of our national [illegible]

[illegible] The view was [illegible] Mr Miller [illegible]

The procession from [illegible] While the procession was [illegible] Hughes [illegible] the large hall was crowded with [illegible] and a capital time was experienced. A collation was given at the St Charles [illegible] It was a splendid affair and [illegible] participants.

EX[illegible] HOSPITALITY

We cannot omit to mention in the highest complimentary terms the generous hospitality displayed by the good people of Albany toward their visitors. Nothing was forgotten, nothing omitted which in any way [illegible] the [illegible] comfort [illegible] Albanians [illegible] Messrs Mathews & [illegible]

HOMEWARD

After a most agreeable visit many of the Portlanders [illegible] town [illegible] Centennial committee [illegible] Chief Webber and his assistants [illegible] A number of firemen came out to the depot [illegible] away cheer upon cheer was given.

The following Telegraphic D'spatch was received and published in the "Oregonian" of the 10th July:

Philadelphia, July 8 1876.

A grand fight is now going on among the Centennial Judges of Pianos. It is charged that several of them are in the interests of Inferior Manufacturers, for which reason they refuse to concur in any report declaring their judgment in favor of the best Instruments exhibited. Experts unreservedly declare the

THE TERRITORIES.

Coal sells in Salt Lake at $6 50 per ton

Geo. Smith of Steilacoom met with a serious accident last week by having a log roll against him, crushing his legs badly

Charles Simmons who has been stopping at the Quinault reservation in Chehalis county, was recently taken to the hospital for the insane.

There will be about 350 tons of hops raised in the Puyallup valley this season The plant looks well and picking will begin about the 1st of September

The Salt Lake Tribune says "The first and only wives of several of the law breaking old polygamists of Utah are going for them in the United States courts, and are getting the rights of which they have so long been deprived

Major Howlett informs the Boise Statesman that the Dowling boys are driving 1,700 logs this season down the Boise river, enough for 600,000 feet of lumber and that they have passed the mouth of the North Boise and have a good stage of water and are getting along finely

T J Chalmers of Yakima City arrived in Olympia last week having driven a band of 80 head of cattle across Snoqualmie pass He reports the pass as in a fair condition, but quite muddy There is but little snow on the summit, and only where the timber is thick a distance of ten or twelve miles

Few people comprehend the magnitude of the war in Dakota Father Mesplie is well posted on the Indian tribes and gives the Idaho Statesman the following estimate of their numbers He puts the Sioux down at 60 000 the Crows at 15,000 Blackfeet 20 000, Utes or Utahs 35 000, and in addition there are the Brule, Ogollalla Minneconjou Yanctonnais Uncpapa, Two Kettles San Arcs and Santee bands. Some of the Crows and some others who live around the reservation are friendly, but many who pretend friendship will gather arms and ammunition for their tribes He says they are in strong alliance with each other to carry on this war, although, when they have no common enemy to fight, they fight each other but now they are united against what they consider a common enemy and will turn out all their warriors, and they will number at least 50,000, and the Father says it is likely to be the most formidable and bloody Indian war in the history of our government. They are well armed and will fight to the death whenever they are cornered.

WAIFS AND STRAYS.

Tahiti has a big scandal The wife of a French judge, herself of Parisian birth, has deserted her husband and family and is living in a native hut with a full blooded Kanaka. She declares that she likes the change

The hotels at the mountains are as usual employing for waiters girls belonging to some of the best families of New Hampshire and Vermont and they make themselves useful not only in the dining room but in the parlors entertaining guests

A Georgia musical critic says "At the concert in Griffin the other night, a solo sung by Mrs Clara R Johnson received rapturous applause. Her voice is rich clear and full of melody It falls upon the hearers like silver spray upon a sea of molten gold dotted with floating diamonds and precious pearls

The expediency of a second submarine cable to Europe is strongly advocated in all the Australian colonies and has formed the subject matter of a dispatch between the several governments. The long interruption in communication will probably lead to something being done and measures being taken for the reduction of the present rate

The difference between an artistic ideal and a photograph of fact, in acting was illustrated the other night at Wade's theater, San Francisco, where "a live Welshman" was presented as Fluellen The result is thus stated "Fluellen was unfortunate Nobody knew what he was saying, and he did not seem to be very sure himself His services were dispensed with after the first night and Mr Scallan a member of the regular company, was substituted with marked improvement to the general effect." Which is the old story of the peasant the pig and the mimic.

The Rome (Ga) News has this On Saturday night, as Jonas Kinebrew, colored was wearily meandering homeward as he neared the center of the railroad bridge, he was attacked by a bull dog. Jones was the happy possessor of an old rusty pistol, which he let fly at the dog's head This was like adding fuel to the fire and the dog made after the negro, who turned and hit him over the head with what is called a skeleton lantern The light was not extinguished by the air and the frame being firmly fastened around the dog's neck, his throat was burned until life was extinct.

COURTING IN PUBLIC.—Every day we have additional evidence of the truth of the old adage, says the Troy Times that "the fools are not all dead yet." On Saturday evening a couple entered a car of the local train at Albany He was a young fellow of rather an ardent temperament, with white hair cut close and with a face "where scarce appeared the uncertain prophecy of beard" She was a lively damsel of 18 with eyes "all love, half languor and half fire," and with a new summer bonnet. They sat in the same seat and seemed utterly unconscious of the fact that their actions were the cynosure of all neighboring eyes" Her arm stole gently around his neck, his crept slyly around her waist She would bend over and whisper something in his ear He would incline his head slightly to catch the falling meaning He beheld himself reflected from her eyes and she could see whether her new summer bonnet was on straight in his The passengers were as much interested in the affair as the parties themselves This was kept up until the train arrived at Troy and we saw them no more

A SMART DOG.—The Boston Traveller says "Mr Tobin newsdealer on Broadway South Boston has a St Bernard dog so sagacious that when a rain storm threatens or begins to drop, he sniffs around in proximity to an umbrella stand and on obtaining an umbrella starts at full speed with it in his mouth from Atlantic street near Dorchester Heights to his master's near E street on Broadway and frequently carries parcels back and forth
